ABOUT ALSA

ALSA (Asian Law Students' Association) was formed on May 18, 1989 by a group of law students from Indonesia, Malaysia, Singapore, Thailand and the Philippines. The agreement to establish ALSA took place in Jakarta at the 1989 ALSA Conference. Globalization made the formation of this organization important at the time, as the different legal systems in each member country needed to be united in preparation for the era.

In 2003, ALSA expanded by merging with the East Asian Law Students' Association under a new name, the Asian Law Students' Association (retaining the abbreviation ALSA). ALSA is known as a non-governmental and non-political organization with members from 17 Asian countries (National Chapter).
